LABOR LEADER IS GIVEN SIX MONTHS FOR CRAP SHOOTING

AMOS JUDISCH, FORMER SAMSON TOOL-MAKER PUT UNDER BOARD OF CONTROL.

PLAYMATE FREED

Partner in Crap Game Goes Back to Rockford—Labor Agitation Material Found on Judisch.

"C'mon, you natural!" A six months' term under the state board of control for shooting craps was pronounced by Maxfield in the Milwaukee court today upon Amos Judisch, 32, tool-maker and alleged labor agitator at the Samson Tractor plant. Judisch, together with Axel Nylander, a Rockford youth, also a former Samson employee, pleaded guilty to the charge of gambling with dice for the charge of shooting craps.

Nylander was released upon his promise to go back to Rockford. His urge and the fact that they were shooting with "loaded" dice had been the property of Judisch, enticed the youth into the decision to be aligned with him as against Judisch, whom he said he thought is "an experienced gambler."

Dice Were Loaded

The two were arrested in the William Heller saloon, 419 West Milwaukee street, yesterday afternoon by Officer Con O'Leary, who, because being dressed in plainclothes made it hard to enter with them, was up the game. They were shooting the "galloping dominoes" on top of a table in the saloon, pleading for "sevens or 'levens."

Had Plenty of Cash

When searched, they had $180 in his pockets, Judisch about $135. Several button buttons bearing these words—"The Right to Organize"—were found on Judisch together with cards calling attention to an alleged tool-makers' strike at the Samson. The cards bore the following message:

I. A. of M.

Officers and Members of Local No. We wish to notify you that the Tool-makers are on Strike at the Samson Tractor Co.'s plant in Janesville, Wis., Lodge 1254. Please help us in keeping all Tool makers and Machinists away from here.

Yours Fraternally,

Arthur Mitchell

Amos Judisch

Committee: Harry Braun

Former Government Employee

Judisch at first gave the name of Smit, police say. In court today he said his home was formerly in Muscatine, Ia., he having left there about 10 years ago to go to Detroit and later to Rockford. He said he came to Janesville in January from the Rock Island arsenal where he had worked for three years. He gave his home here as 618 Court street. Although appearing past the 40 mark with his gray hair, he asserted he was but 35 and divorced.

Thought Trigonometry

He denied an implication that he had enticed Nylander into the dice and entered Judisch into the game, declaring he had been teaching him the trade; had helped him with problems and had taught him the fundamentals of trigonometry. Judge Maxfield gave him a sentence of six months in the county jail granting him the privilege of not being placed under the state board of control for this period. Judisch accepted the privilege.

Strike Told Denied

All statements relating to a strike of tool-makers at the Samson plant were emphatically denied today by I. A. of M. Arthur Mitchell, chief of the personnel department.

"There is no strike of the Samson machinists employed in the tool room or any other department," he said. "What happened was that the tool room mechanics had a petition to the company asking that they be permitted to name the foreman and assistant foreman of the room. They particularly wanted to name the same foreman and assistant foreman as the men who had been appointed to the company last year. This petition was presented to the company last Friday morning, February 27. The management asked time to investigate before making a decision of any kind."

Judisch Was Spokesman

"The chief spokesman for the petitioners was Judisch. He is the man who instigated the petition and did the agitating. When the men returned he called them out. Thirty-five men quit. Of this number 21 were not members of the union. Six of them returned to work. On the following Monday, I. A. of M. Nickerson, founder, organizer of the International Association of Machinists, arrived in the city and visited the management of the tractor company and was told that they could come back.

Assistant Foreman Quits

"Mr. Nickerson stated there was no strike and none had been ordered or voted on nor had any of the men of the union in reference to the strike been carried out. So far as is now known, he is the present situation. The right force of the tool room went to work and has been working continuously since. Ellis, the assistant foreman, came from the Rock Island arsenal. He has remained since the strike in the tool room.

The Samson Tractor company objects to the statement that there is a strike at its plant as there is none. One agitator is responsible for practically all the trouble."

IF LEAGUE FAILS DANIELS INSISTS NAVY BE ENLARGED

SECRETARY RECOMMENDS GREATER BUILDING PROGRAM FOR NEXT YEAR.

3 CAPITAL SHIPS

Declares America Must Be Ready to Meet Any Emergency.

(By Associated Press) Washington, March 6.—Secretary Daniels, in his house naval committee today he would recommend a naval building program for the next fiscal year larger than that proposed by the general board. "If the peace treaty is not ratified, then a session of Congress," withholding the recommendation, the secretary added that if this country in the end rejected membership in the league of nations he would feel impelled to renew his recommendation for another three year program of construction.

Reiterating his position yesterday that the country must have a league of nations by which every nation will help preserve the peace of the world without competitive naval building or we must have incomparably the biggest navy in the world," Mr. Daniels declared there was no middle ground.

THE GAZETTE'S PLATFORM FOR JANESEVILLE AND ROCK COUNTY.

Community Betterments to which this Newspaper is Pledged.

An adequate and modern hotel.

A community building containing an auditorium, woman's rest room, and memorial hall for soldiers sailors and nurses.

Traffic regulations which will reduce danger on streets to the minimum.

A street car service which will answer the needs of an increasing population.

Improved streets in the city and better roads in the country.

A survey of the housing situation with a view of discouraging exorbitant rentals for both rooms and houses.

Careful appraisal of property, particularly that of those who have increased their rentals, so that they may pay their fair share of the taxes.

A livestock pavilion at the fair grounds to be used in promoting the county's endeavor to take first place in the state as a stock producing center.

An indoor recreation center in which dances and sporting events may be held.

More parks and playgrounds for use of the entire community.

Protected ice-skating rinks for children.

ONE MORE STRONG PULL.

One more strong, hard pull and a pull all-together and the hotel fund is an accomplished fact. Janesville will be over the top with a project that will do more good for the city than anything we have done for years.

Any one who has not yet subscribed will find the committee ready to receive the aid. The younger business men of the city have been hustling during the week and their efforts are bringing results.

THE AMERICAN SPIRIT.

The railroad brotherhoods and other organizations of workers employed on transportation lines have given the right answer to much of the criticism leveled against them recently. In deciding to forego all action on their own account until there has been a fair trial of the new railroad legislation, the men have taken the course dictated by every consideration entitled to a place.

The action is all the more notable and deserves all the more commendation because the railroad organizations have been consistently accused of cherishing revolutionary purposes and maneuvering to precipitate a situation which might become a national calamity.
Even in congress the men have been charged with an intention to threaten the government and arbitrarily insist upon attention only to the interests of labor on the railroads. The organizations could have given no reply to these accusations that would have been a better statement of their state of mind.

This is the sort of spirit which will protect the United States from the troubles which a few unthinking or reckless individuals have been trying to convince the country they see ahead.

The railroad workers had the choice between making trouble and assisting in making peace at the most critical stage in the history of American industry. Additional choice was between securing an advantage for their material interests and foregoing that advantage.
That the men voted to postpone all demands on their side until the reconstruction programs have had full opportunity to show the railroad managers to be right and the workers wrong is something in their favor which should bring them a compliment for the display of a fair deal principle not often witnessed.

THE FEAR OF RESPONSIBILITY.

That humane society agent who declined to end the agony of cattle and swine injured in a train wreck in an eastern state recently, on the ground that to kill the animals might be in conflict with the rules of the railroad company, is an example of a common weakness of character to which Secretary Lane called attention the other day in animadversions on certain types of public servants. They had ability, he said, but it was paralyzed by their dread of responsibility.

The fear of possible consequences of a mistake makes such persons unwilling to take the initiative in doing even what they believe to be right. There are many of them in private as well as the public service.
They take the easiest way. The humane society man, according to the dispatch, did not deny that every consideration of humanity demanded that the animals crushed and maimed in the wreck should be put out of their suffering. But he was not going to take the responsibility. If the railroad company's rules forbade it, he was going to let someone else shoulder whatever penalty might come of disobedience of the regulations.

Striking responsibility sometimes is no more than prudent; but only too frequently it betrays slothfulness, timidity, or downright cowardice.

Study of great men reveals as the predominating trait of their characters that they did not hesitate to accept responsibilities. The shirkers may escape the penalties of error, but they never rise above mediocrity.
The rewards of success go invariably to those who are willing to take the risk of blame for failure.

TRADING LIBERTY BONDS FOR

WILD CAT STOCKS.

Millions and millions of dollars of Liberty bonds have been taken from the holders and in their place the former owners have some beautifully lithographed samples of good-for-nothing wild cat stocks. To the holder there is a word of warning: whenever a man comes along and offers to trade stock in an investment that will pay from 25 to 100 percent for your Liberty bonds, don't do it. In the first place the man who makes the promise is lying, and in the second place the man who trades the stock in is a fool. Go to the bank and find out. The best guide in these matters is your banker. He will tell you the truth. It is his business to keep in touch with the stock situation.

BUILDING INCREASING.

The demand for houses is not alone in Janesville.
It is almost universal in any growing industrial center.
Milwaukee needs hundreds of houses—more than Janesville. Almost all cities in the Fox river valley have need for houses. Beloit had a plan whereby $400,000 was to be invested in houses, and the Chamber of Commerce was to have arranged for the financing of the project. But it fell through and a quarter of the amount is to be arranged through building and loan companies. Appleton is crying for houses. The Post-Crescent says the city "must provide homes for the

Edgar A. Guest

HE LIVED HIS LIFE.

He lived his life with heart and soul
And willing hands and ready brain,
He did not talk about his goal,
But worked its splendors to attain;
He did not boast of lofty things
And be content with flowery phrase,
But knowing all that honor brings,
He lived in honor all his days.

He knew the emptiness of speech
That is not founded well in deeds,
He did not undertake to teach
His neighbor all his little needs;
But little here he had to say,
Words from his lips were slow to run,
Men learned his thoughts from day to day
From something helpful he had done.

He was not one to prate of truth
And in his conduct live a lie;
He did not order eager youth
To deeds he would not dare to try;
In times of need his heart was kind.
When strength was called for, he was strong;
To faults in others he was blind,
Yet tried to keep himself from wrong.

Was seldom that men heard him tell
What dreams he'd woven in his plan,
They only knew when care beset,
That he was every inch a man;
And when at last he passed away
His every thought was understood,
Though little he had had to say,
The life that he had lived was good.

many people who are seeking to locate and to live here, and who are daily being turned away in numbers which are not only discouraging, but surely prophetic of what will happen to this city unless something is done to change the situation."

Building operations all over the country have reached large proportions once more and February shows up with a total of $450,000,000, an increase over January of $30,000,000 and over December of $70,000,- 000, according to a report issued by a large Chicago banking house. The report calls attention to the betterment in labor conditions, and this factor is stimulating production.

All these facts should encourage Janesville. Building costs, we are told, still move toward higher levels, but this tendency is apparently not interfering with operations.

Cassius Roger Sullivan has driven his dagger deep into the Roman ribs of the Beer Caesar. Any party, says Mr. Sullivan, boss of Illinois democracy, that makes its platform wet, will be defeated. Next we shall expect Mr. Sullivan to come out for Bryan.

Presidential aspirants on the democratic side are not so sure whether it was Mr. or Mrs. Wilson who said the president would not run for a third term. They would like to know for dead sure.

Ohio is getting back to normal with a several candidates for presidential candidates. Senator Harding has the popularity but lacks the votes.

Col. House finds himself contending with Barney Baruch as the power behind the Wilson throne in the war. So it wasn't Neft Baker after all.

Mails were delayed by the storms this time. However there are some reasons to believe that Burleigh had a hand in it.

The others have apparently been drinking wool alcohol.

A Milwaukee grand jury could find no profiteering.
Attorney General Palmer must have been there.

If the Chicago police had done their duty the population of Joliet might have shown a larger increase.

Those Asian people who were forced to eat mules probably found the food had a kick in it.

When Janesville called "Front" on the hotel proposition there was some real hopping.

Backward Glimpses

FORTY YEARS AGO

March 6, 1880.—"A Tramp Abroad" is the name of the latest work of Mark Twain, it being a "companion volume to "Innocents Abroad." It has just been received here.—The Y. M. C. A. library has added several well-known magazines to its library and they may be drawn out as books, except that they will be kept only one week.

THIRTY YEARS AGO

March 6, 1890.—President E. D. Eaton of Beloit College, delivered a lecture in this city at the Congregational church last night. The title was "Oliver Cromwell." There was a good audience, despite the extremely cold weather.—Charles McLean is now agent of the A. P.
Burnham, who has entered the Rock County bank.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

March 6, 1900.—Michael and Dennis Hayes, of the contracting firm of Hayes brothers, of this city, are now figuring on taking a portion of the contract for the grading for the building of the gigantic underground railway in New York city. The New York man who got the contract, wrote to them, urging them to take a portion of it.

Cuban Politics

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN, Director
Janesville Daily Gazette Information Bureau,
Washington, D. C.

Habana, Cuba, March 6.—There is said to be a Cuban revolution in Cuba before long, which will necessitate American intervention under the Platt amendment.

This is the prediction of Emilio Cassini, a prominent Italian citizen of Habana, who is said to be in "good shape." "Rough Riders," and had the distinction of being the bugler who rode with Colonel Roosevelt and his staff. He was before that a resident of Jerome, Arizona, where he enlisted in the "Rough Riders." Except for annual visits to Europe before and ever since, Mr. Cassini had been in Cuba, Spain, and the United States.
He is an acute observer and an student not only of Cuban politics but of world politics as well. While he does not cherish any illusions about Cuba or the United States, he does not believe that the United States has any right to interfere in Cuban affairs.

It is fair to say that other authorities do not concur in Mr. Cassini's pessimistic predictions about Cuba's political future. The optimists say that Cuban political life has never been more orderly than at present.
The new election law, which is to be held in November, is expected to bring about a fair and orderly election.
It is admitted, however, that the leading Cuban politicians are bitterly hostile to each other and to the United States.

The following account of Cuban politics is based to a considerable extent upon information furnished by Mr. Cassini, but is amplified and corroborated from other sources, so that it is not to be held exclusively responsible for it.

The fact of the matter seems to be that Latin-American politics, as typically represented in Cuba, are much like our own. Just as in the United States, here are parties which do not stand for much, and they put forth platitudes which are easily soundly but empty phrases, and back of these parties and their platforms are hidden a variety of forces—financial, religious, political, personal, racial—which use the parties as best they can for their own ends.

The difference between Cuban politics and our own is one more of temperament than of anything else.
A demagogue in this country capitalizes discontent by founding new party or whooping up some new cause-all-for-itself. In Cuba he capitalizes it by organizing a revolution and serving out rifles.

Spanish Element Interesting
The conservative and liberal parties in Cuba are no more truly representative of the people than are those in the country, the Democrats and the Republicans.

Spain is the mother of Cuban politics. The Spanish element in the population is Spanish. By a Spanish is meant one born in Spain, or the child of Spanish-born parents, or he has kept his affiliations with the Spanish element. There could be no greater mistake than to imagine that Spanish and Cuban are of pure Spanish descent. They are the same thing.

The sharpest social and political division in the island is between the Cubans of colonial descent and the Spanish families which have come over since the year 1898. Each of these elements has its own culture, its own clubs, to a considerable extent its own customs. Members of the old aristocratic Cuban families, which have been here since the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries, would under no consideration marry Spaniards, families which have come over since the year 1898. Each of

200 EXPECTED AT BANQUET, MONDAY

Reservations for Big Chamber of Commerce Dinner Must Be Made By Monday

Noon.

Reservations were being received at the Chamber of Commerce all day today for the big dinner and program to be held at the C. A. Sherrill Hotel at 6:30 o'clock Monday evening. The affair marks the opening of the week's campaign for 225 new members of the Chamber of Commerce. More than 200 are expected to attend.

D. B. Weigel, chief campaign director of the American City Bureau, will be among the speakers. He will remain in Janesville throughout the campaign. The complete program could not be announced at the Chamber of Commerce today. It is hoped that the $400,000 total drive will be finished on Monday night so the dinner may come as a celebration of that and also as the opening shot of the membership campaign.

Open To All

The banquet is open to all booster citizens, whether or not they are members of the Chamber of Commerce. A charge of one dollar per plate will be made. Reservations must be phoned to the Chamber of Commerce not later than Monday noon.

By means of an intensive drive next week it is hoped to increase the membership of the Chamber to 1,000. The present roll contains 675 names.

New Members Secured.

During February the following new members were secured: Herman Sheltley, Turpin Smith, Factors, 11 Court Street; Bingham Motors company, 1 Pleasant street; Hugh H. Gallaway, real estate, 105 West Milwaukee street.

Plural memberships were assigned during the month by the Janesville Electric company to W. C. Sampson, F. C. Goss, and Thomas Chamberlain by the First National bank to E. W. Litts, F. H. ## SCHOOL OF METHODS CLOSES SESSIONS

The five day session of the school of methods held this week in various churches here ended last evening with a session at the Federated church, "which J. B. Bennett gave a splendid address on 'The Struggle for Existence'." Mr. Bennett, a former professor at Valparaiso university, has deduced many practical truths in regard to living conditions, these he presented in a strong manner.

He emphasized the thought that man is an animal and subject to the same conditions as other animals, and that those best adapted to adjust themselves to their environment will survive. He said that man must be filled with animals that life could not exist. He defined three attributes: "To get good is animal; to do good, human; and to be good, divine. All of these are united in mankind."

"Mother Nature never fails," he said, "and those who disobey the laws of nature will meet ultimate extinction." He stressed the thought that children must be taught that they are creatures of law and not accident, and if they use liquor, tobacco, and other things detrimental to growth, the results are the law of nature, and those suffer the penalty.

The class in missions was given at 4 o'clock with Mrs. C. E. Ewing in charge. The discussion was on juries for methods.

A round table conference on primary and kindergarten teaching, the Standard section, was held at 6 o'clock by Miss Lenore Casford. The evening session began at 8 o'clock and the address of Mr. Bennett occupied the whole time and fittingly closed the meetings. Six churches cooperated in making the meetings a success. More than 100 were enrolled for the various classes.

MISSION WILL BE HELD AT ST. MARY'S

Chiropractor fathers of the Order of Oconomowoc will conduct another mission at St. Mary's church beginning Sunday morning, March 14, continuing until the following Sunday evening. Rev. Father Charles Olson, assistant pastor, and Father John Zelliot are the fathers of the order who will have charge of the mission. They are the priests who conducted the successful mission which was held at St. Mary's church during last Lent.

Mr. Dunn will preach at the 7:30 and 10:30 o'clock mass at St. Mary's church tomorrow morning, and again at the 7:30 o'clock service which will be held in the evening. Delegates from this city.

100 COUPLES.

To the tunes played by the Lakota orchestra, 100 couples danced last night at the Samson party. The dance was given in the armory, which was decorated with flags and red and white crepe paper.

FAIR DIRECTORS CRITICISE EARLY DATE OF STATE EXHIBIT

(By Associated Press)

Wausau, March 6.—Before adjourning the Association of Wisconsin Fairs adopted a resolution criticizing the officers of the Wisconsin Agricultural society for the early date of the state fair, claiming that they are a discrimination against the north part of the state, where the people are in manufacturing and asking for later dates hereafter. Officers of the association were elected as follows: President, M. M. Parkinson, Madison; vice-president, C. W. Harvey, Beaver Dam; secretary and treasurer, C. W. Hause, Wausau. A legislative committee was appointed to secure favorable legislation, the members being A. W. Prehn, Wausau; Arthur J. Taylor, Rhinelander; C. W. Harvey, Beaver Dam, and C. W. Hart, Watertown.

The fair will be held on the following dates: Stevens Point, Aug. 17-20; Wausau, Aug. 24-27; Antigo, Aug. 31-Sept. 3; Merrill, Aug. 31-Sept. 3; Marshfield, Sept. 7-10; Chippewa Falls, Sept. 14-17; La Crosse, Sept. 21-24; Durand, Sept. 28-30.

The officers of the association are: Dr. G. A. Mills, president, Wausau; C. S. Van Aken, vice-president, Marshfield; R. R. Williams, secretary, Marshfield; A. C. Cox, treasurer, Wausau.

TWO PERFORMANCES OF ST. PATRICK'S DAY PLAY ARE PLANNED

Fourteen local young people are rehearsing every day under the direction of Miss Josephine Fitzgerald, the three act comedy "A Batch of Blunders," which will be played at the Myers theater afternoon and evening of St. Patrick's day under the auspices of the Ancient Order of Hibernians.

The play, written by Anthony E. Wells, abounds in humor and funny situations, four Irish characters furnishing much sparkling wit to the lines. Every one of the characters has a professional training. This is the first play which the Hibernians have fostered since "The Parish Priest" was presented three years ago at St. Patrick's day.

Action of "A Batch of Blunders" takes place in the Dillingham home, New Rochelle, N. Y.

During the play advanced pupils of Miss Fitzgerald's dancing classes will present the Irish jig and other dances in costume. Between acts there will be musical specialties one of them a duet by Harry Cushing and E. J. Leary.

EDGERTON MASON'S INSTITUTE NEW ORDER

Edgerton, March 6.—George W. Keenan, Madison, past grand high priest of the grand chapter of Royal Arch Masons, was entertained by Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Atwell, the local chapter of the order in the city for the purpose of instituting the local chapter of the order under its new charter. It will be known as Edgerton Chapter No. 96, R. A. M.

Resume of Moving Picture Programs of Last Week

(By MRS. ANGIE HEIMES.)

The possibility of using the airplane was "Greater than Fame," in which Elaine Hammerstein impersonated a country maiden studying music in a big city. The story was that she was a wealthy patron of art and of an opera manager because it seemed the wrong kind, and accepted the love of a crippled soldier husband. He proved to be a talented composer and through his help she became famous also in style of acting and in dancing. And the story with its accessories was carried out in a fine way.

Competitors Not Conspirators. Competitors do not engage in conspiracies. So on the face of it, the government has a general collection of statistics on each trade, profession or business. And then when somebody comes along and wants to claim that he paid an employee or manager $50,000 a year when nobody in the whole business was paid so much, the government investigator takes the matter in hand. To be sure, some odd cases have arisen. And some big concerns have been on the carpet here about "excessive" salaries.

And the government has in many cases decided that the allowance for salary was beyond the average and the employer did not prove that his employee possessed the extraordinary qualifications or performed extraordinary duties which entitled the latter to be considered an exception to the rule. The returns of the general average of one's trade or business competitors is the best check.

But his return is the kind likely to excite curiosity and start the mandatory investigation.

And when the government agents begin examining books and minutes of a corporation, they may find evidence useful to the department of justice in prosecuting profiteering or combinations in restraint of trade.

Present returns to improper returns on income taxes are not always to the United States attorney because the latter haven't the time to familiarize themselves with the intricacies of such cases.

Thousands Are Trained.

Thousands of men are especially trained for investigation and prosecution. For failure to make a return on time, there is a penalty of $1,000 plus 25 percent of the tax due. For failure to pay tax when due or understatement through negligence, there's a penalty of 5 percent interest. For filing a fraudulent return, the penalty is $10,000 and a year's imprisonment plus 50 percent added to the taxes evaded. And besides, individuals are at the same time liable to prosecution under other statutes for perjury, conspiracy and other things that could keep a man in jail for years.

Tentative returns can always be made and amended returns filed later. Honest mistakes are often made. It is a case of good faith and good intent. It's also a case in which honest persons have nothing to fear, while dishonest persons may find themselves in plenty of embarrassment if the government catches them. And the chances of being caught are excellent. No one need make any mistake about it.

THE JANESEVILLE CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

Past

Some Accomplishments of The Chamber of Commerce During The Past Year

BUILDING & LOAN ASSOCIATION: Completed the incorporation of the Janesville Building and Loan Association, which will soon be in operation and will materially assist in the building of homes.

CITY PLAN: Employ Dr. John Nolen, to prepare a City Plan for Janesville. The preliminary plan with maps has already been completed. Secured the adoption of an ordinance by the City Council providing for the appointment of a City Plan Commission for the City.

GOOD ROADS: Assisted in the campaign for a county bond issue of One Million Five Hundred Thousand Dollars, for concrete highways, which was approved by the voters.

HIGH SCHOOL: Conducted a campaign for a new high school, resulting in the purchase of a site and plans for a Six Hundred Thousand Dollar building to be constructed next year.

HOMES REGISTRATION DEPARTMENT: Maintained a Homes Registration Department through which over four thousand people have secured houses, apartments, or furnished rooms.

HOTEL: Conducted a campaign to sell Four Hundred Thousand Dollars of first preferred stock to build a modern, one hundred and fifty room, fireproof hotel in Janesville, resulting in subscriptions to date of $375,000. The campaign has not yet closed.

LABOR BUREAU: At the time of the closing of the Government Employment Bureau, in October, the Chamber of Commerce took over this work and since that time has found places for over six hundred men and women.

POST OFFICE ADDITION: Prepared plans for an addition to the post office building, costing One Hundred and Twenty-Five Thousand Dollars. Secured the introduction of a bill in Congress, but action will probably be delayed until 1921.

Program of Work

The Chamber of Commerce has already some definite plans for future activities. However at the close of the membership campaign a questionnaire will be sent to every member reading as follows:

1.—What, in your opinion as a citizen, is the thing of most importance to be done for the community as a whole?

2.—What do you expect the Chamber of Commerce of Janesville to do for the promotion of your own line of business or activity?

From the replies to this questionnaire a new Program of Work will be formulated to govern the activities of the organization for the coming year.

Heart and Home Problems

BY ELIZABETH THOMPSON

Letters May be Addressed to Mrs. Thompson, in Care of the Gazette

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a boy sixteen years old and not very strong. I will pass the eighth grade in the spring. My father is very unkind to me and often calls me vile names. He is only obliged to work more than I am, and many times when it is unnecessary.

I would like to go to town to work. Would it be all right to leave the next time he tells me to? I have relatives in a city who would be glad to have me stay with them and would get me a good job.

No, you think he could find me and bring me back?" J.M.M.

Graduate from the eighth grade if possible. School credits mean a great deal in business and it will be to your advantage to graduate from an elementary school at least.

All work that you do for anything is hard. You may find if you leave home that the tasks imposed by your employer are as difficult or more difficult than the work your father has made you do.

Talk the matter over with your relatives and if they think you would be better off with them try it next summer. There is little chance that your father would make you return if you left.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a girl eighteen years old and live in a small town. I have been going with a boy friend for three months. He has now quit his former position and obtained one from the people for whom I work. I do not know his reason unless he is thinking more seriously of matrimony, for he tries to attract my attention as often as he can, more than I desire to have him.

In a small town one needs all the friends she has. What can I do to let him down easy and still retain his friendship?

FASHFUL RACHEL

She Married an Average Man

By ZOE BECKLEY

It seems a strange thing that when we lived in New York, supposed to be a regular modern Babylon containing scarcely such a thing as a faithful husband, no jealousies ever tormented me. Even that wretched episode with Fanny Frisbie brought out only my pity. But here in a quiet rural village, the dread thing has seized me.

Perhaps I have talked too much with Agatha Farde. Agatha is a matrimonial cynic. She seems to delight in throwing hints and warnings of danger. I certainly should not be tormenting myself about little Jim. Once a man's wife does not deserve her daughter's trust to me.

I have fought against my imaginings, but I can't help worrying now if Jim is late coming from the works. Tonight I was more nervous than usual.

"Jim, I ventured, unable to bathe with my anxiety any longer, 'are men ever perfectly faithful to their wives? I mean, does any man ever keep on loving her after they have been married two or three years, in the way he did before?'

"Why, you unutterably ridiculous person, what struck you now?" laughed Jim, drawing me to him and looking me to look squarely into his eyes. "I'm not the sort he'd be, perhaps, but I am, far, far better, a more responsible guy. Especially if she loses her mind and goes back to her boyhood."

"Don't tease me; answer me!" I begged.

"I am answering you. But you don't expect me to make a serious reply to such a question. Annikins! You must get these silly notions out of your mind, dearest! If Jim we used to say when we made mouths at each other: 'Look out; your face might freeze that way! I'd hate such ideas as you seem to have lately to freeze into your mind, Pussykin!'

"I pulled away, feeling I was being chased, but I too gathered my brooding thoughts to care. "Then, hurry! Miss Green off to New York where she wants to go. Get her a position there. Jim. Don't have her—messing about any longer."

Your Choice Should be a Hoover Electric Cleaner

It Beats
As it Sweeps
As it Cleans

Come to our second floor and let us demonstrate how The Hoover beats—as it sweeps—as it cleans—It will not oblige you in the least.

The Hoover is the largest selling Electric Cleaner in the world because it exclusively combines the three essentials for thorough cleaning, beating, sweeping and suction.

With the Hoover, the life of any rug or carpet which is Hoovered regularly is guaranteed to be greatly prolonged.

The Hoover is built to last a lifetime—a Hoover should outlive several electric cleaners of the other types.

The Hoover Motors are larger, stronger, more rugged in construction. They are the only ones which are fully incased to prevent dirt and dust getting into them to cause wear.

Your choice should be a HOOVER—it excels all others by a wide margin—as it honestly does.

RADIUM FOR CANCER

Cancer is not hereditary. Cancer is not contagious or infectious.

Cancer appears in every family, sooner or later, because it is as common as tuberculosis and more prevalent than typhoid fever, and there is no known immunity against the disease.

No one has found the cause of cancer.

No honest physician pretends to have a medicinal cure for cancer. Cancer may occur in infancy, youth, early middle life, middle age, advanced age, or senility.

There are three principal types of cancer. (1) Gastric cancer—so-called, which occurs in any age, often in young persons, and in any part or division of the body (a month or a month or two), and rapidly fatal unless promptly removed by surgery. (2) Organ cancer—carcinoma—which occurs usually around middle age, develops insidiously, early spreads through the lymphatic vessels to the neighboring lymph nodes ("cancer glands") and, unless removed by "roots," as the cancer quickly imagines, is usually painless in the earliest stage, occurs most commonly in the neck of the woman in mothers of families next to the stomach in men, and grows fatal in from six months to two years unless radically removed by surgery or, in the case of cancer of the womb, unless the progress of the degeneration is stayed by radium or X-ray treatment. (3) Surface cancer—carcinoma, which occurs slowly in elderly persons, develops very slowly, years, often in the seat of some trifling wart, pimple, mole or other benign lesion on the cheek, eyelid, nose, lip, or elsewhere on the surface of the body, is far less malignant and painless than the other forms of cancer, and is removable by sunlight, X-ray, radium, or operator, even by caustics such as the cancer charlatans apply—although the last named is flirting and challenging and—and

"You mustn't say that," Jim's voice had the tone one uses to a kiddle when one has to improve it and refers to long, long patience. "I suppose we are not quite yourself, Annikins, but I am, far, far better now."

Annikins and I want to treat you with gentleness and consideration these days, dear, but I can't have you say unjust things of a mere child who has done you no harm. You aren't normally—so foolish."

"I am not taking consideration of myself only, Jim. For your own sake, too, please get her away from here. If you love me—if you ever loved me, Jim, send her from this place. Everyone wants her to go. She is a mischief-maker, a horrid little pest a scheming—"

"I stopped short of Jim's face, and he stopped me. I realized I had made the fatal mistake of arousing his sympathy for Rose Green, and his masculine instinct of protection for HER."

YOLKS AND WHITES. Kindly inform me which is the more nutritious, the yolk or the white of the egg? The yolk is about seven times more nutritious, owing to the large amount of yolk fat, which contains a greater proportion of protein than the white. So the yolks have it by a large majority.

CREAMED FISH—Make a sauce by creaming two tablespoons of flour and two tablespoons of butter, substitute for the egg. Add one cup of milk. Put this in a double boiler, add one-half teaspoon of salt, one-quarter teaspoon of pepper, one-half teaspoon of onion juice, and one bay leaf. Stir until as thick as cream. Cover the bottom of a baking dish with some cold fish, marked, and pour over it the sauce. Sprinkle the centers of each slice of bread, place on platter, brush each piece with melted butter substitute, put in hot with butter and brown in a moderately hot oven. Any kind of left over fish may be used.

OYSTER LOAF—Four slices of bread, one pint of oysters, specks of mace, two bay leaves, one pint of boiling water, two tablespoons of butter substitute, salt and pepper to taste, one-half cup of cream of chicken soup, one-half cup of milk.

Send the oysters in the boiling water, drain. Put the water in a saucepan with butter and mace, bay leaves, salt and pepper. Let come to a boil, add cream of chicken soup, let boil for a minute or two, add the oysters, cook for 5 minutes or more, cut the centers of each slice of bread, place on platter, brush each piece with melted butter substitute, put in quick oven to brown, all with creamed oysters and serve.

DIAMOND CUT DIAMOND

By JANE BUNKER

Copyright by the Bobbs-Merrill Co.

THE STONES I HELD WERE BLOOD-RED DIAMONDS! And there were seven of them—a stone you could see one in a year, perhaps. Why, I didn't know there were such stones in the heavens or the earth or the waters under the earth! Seven blood-red diamonds, absolutely flawless, first-water gems, and price unmatched to the last face, the last gleam and twinkle in their radiant depths.

I held them, almost frightened, and really didn't hear what she was saying till she remarked something about their being matched.

Matched! Well, they were matched this way. If not absolutely perfect mechanical tool, yet with an absolutely perfect mechanical tool, working on absolutely perfect substance can be conceived, the mind and the tool, working without variation, might have produced those seven stones. Yes—I should say they were matched!

"I remember you told me once," she was prattling, "that the larger the stones, the more individual they become and the harder they were to match. If they were worth five thousand dollars apiece, couldn't I get—say—forty thousand dollars for the seven?"

"Forty thousand dollars?" I gasped, looking at her now, for the first time since I looked at her.

"An expert in diamonds—crossed his face, and of chargin' too, at having committed herself before an expert—as she kindly regarded me.

"Couldn't I get as much as twenty thousand for them, don't you think?" she faltered. "Aren't rubies the size worth even that?"

"RUBIES?" I don't have simply shouted the word at her.

"It ain't they rubles? Oh, don't tell me they're only paste!"

She looked ready to cry with disappointment and mortification.

"PASTEE!" I know I yelled that word at the walls echoed. "Why, woman, there're DIAMONDS!—blood red, red, and the most valuable stone in the world!"

She clasped her hands about my arm and gave out a long "O-o-h!

Then they're worth forty thousand dollars at the very least!"

"Mrs. Delario," I said soothily, "I can give you only a rough estimate, for those stones are too rare, my guess is they may be worth even the two worth at least a million dollars."

Silence fell on us—my words had sort of stunned us both; for until I had spoken them aloud the full meaning of the diamonds hadn't come home to me, and that I there, casually, had a million dollars in my hand. I all at once seemed a solemn thing to be doing—an immense responsibility. I dropped them back in their box, put the lid on and handed them to her.

Her own first words showed the timid woman. "And I've got this right out of the house with me!"

I felt sorry for her. I was glad I didn't have them in the house with me. I saw her apprehension when her eyes roved over the room as if for a possible hiding place. When her eyes returned to the box, she uttered under her breath, "A million dollars! And I asked only a little for Lila's sake. What confidence they must have had in me! A million dollars!" She had evidently taken my word with implicit trust that I was right, though I was afraid of doing it myself. My thoughts of silencing one another, and the silence between us was such you could have heard a pin drop. And that silence the front bell pealed through the house.

Mrs. Delario's voice flew to her bosom, "But she has been shot. Why God, it's come!" she gasped, and the color left her face.

CHAPTER IV.

The Wicked Flea.

I confess I was frightened when I thought of the diamonds and only two women alone in the house—aptly—two to guard them, but Mrs. Delario was terrified.

She trembled, she looked about the room surprisedly. "Where can I hide them? And we two women alone in the house!"

Again the ring—a long, long rattle; whoever it was meant to get in followed pounding on the door.

And with that she whisked up her stockings and tucked the box down into her stockings.

I had risen and was preparing to follow her out, feeling she might need me, but she turned and said for me to wait behind the door out of sight and listen.

She left me. I heard the front door open just as the pounding began again. She asked, "What is it?" and a man's voice answered, "Does Eugene Delario live here?" She said he did, and demanded what was wanted of him. The man's voice said, "I must see him at once."

And then, to my amazement, I heard her tell the man, "I'm sorry, but you can't—tonight; he's sick in bed."

I rather think I can see him, then," was the retort. "And I will."

There followed, well, not quite a scuffle but a very active shuffling of feet, and the man pushed his way into the house in spite of her, pushing her aside from the door, which he shut with a bang and a "Now, come in." Sessions began to trickle down my spine.

"In which room is the young man sick?" demanded the voice.

"I tell you you can't see him—I refuse to let you go upstairs. What right have you forcing yourself into my house this way, and demanding to see my sick son?" she asked again.

"Now, lady, be reasonable and I'll show you," he replied in a tone meant to conciliate. I heard a rat-a-tat of paper.

"A warrant!" she gasped.

"That's what," he said. "Want to see my badge?" There was a sharp rustle as he assumed his howdah hat to show it off, she gasped. "An otherwise a warrant."

"Now, lady, be reasonable and I'll show you," he replied in a tone meant to conciliate. I heard a rat-a-tat of paper.

"That's what," he said. "Want to see my badge?" There was a sharp rustle as he assumed his howdah hat to show it off, she gasped. "An otherwise a warrant."

"Now, lady," he began still continuing, "you don't want to make any more trouble for yourself than's necessary. I got to do my duty, and I think always please me. I got to do it. It ain't my fault if I got to arrest your son; I ain't doing it to spite you, nor him—he didn't steal any diamonds off me, you know."

"Steal any diamonds?" she interrupted. "He never stole a diamond in his life. Now!"

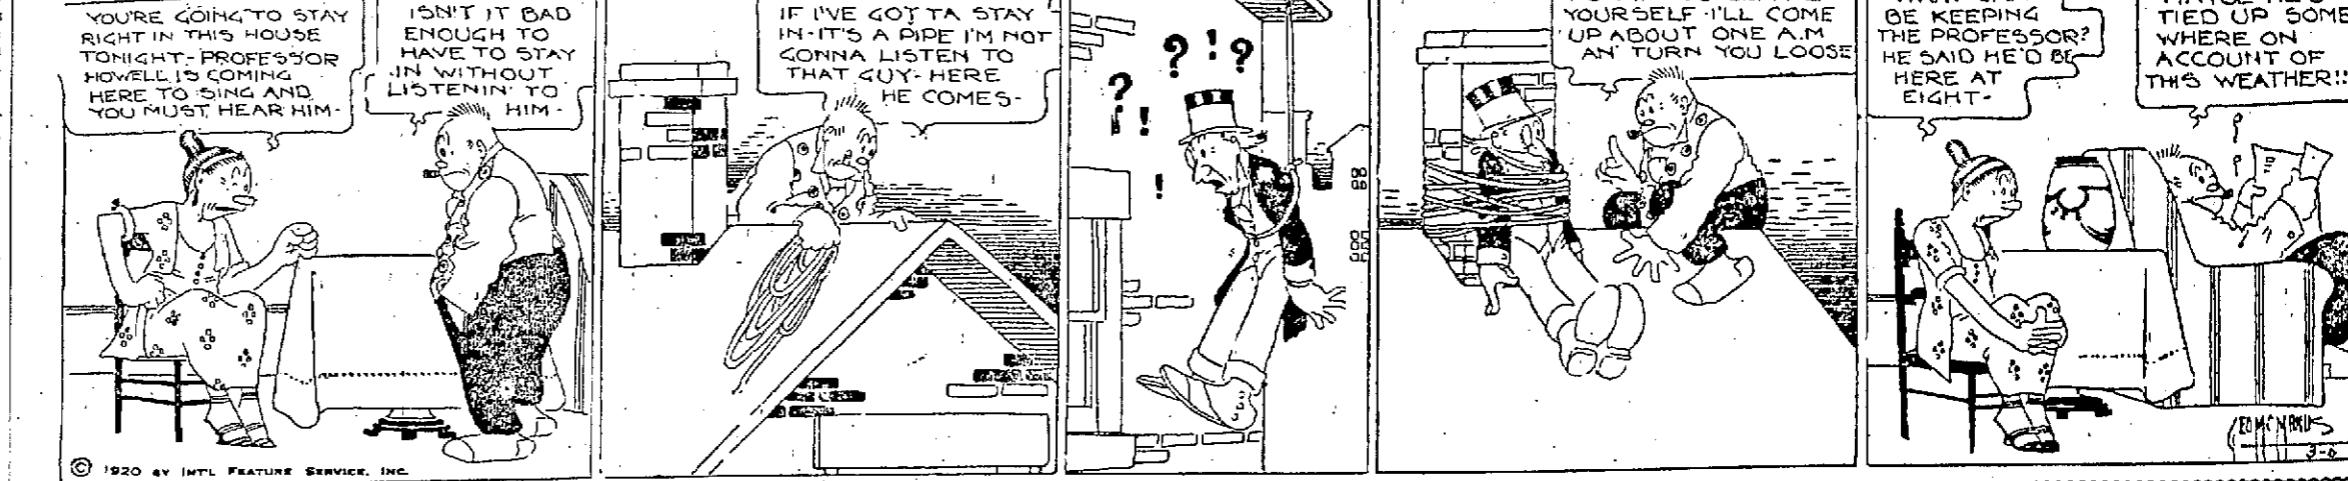

I fancied the man shrugging as he said, "So much the better for him if he didn't steal them—I'm sure I hope for your sake he didn't, though it looks bad, him trying to sell them to the very parties that know all about them."

"Now, lady, and I could see her clinging to the banister. She was evidently at a loss what to do.

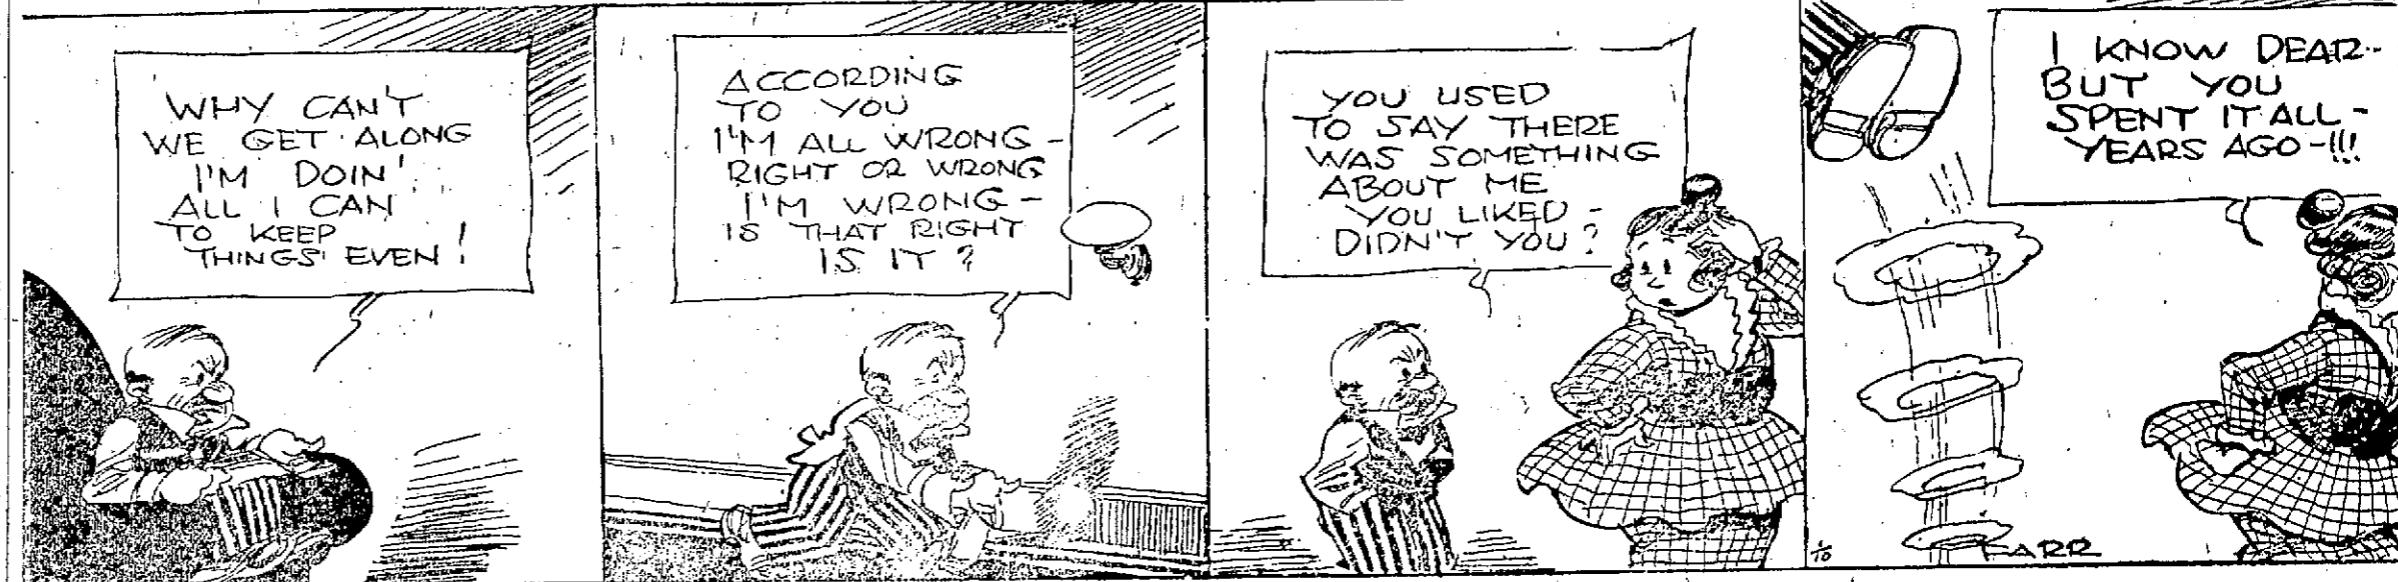

I understood in a flash what had happened—this man or an accomplice was the one who had followed her son home from the Malden Jane earlier yesterday. He evidently thought he was making headway, for he went on.

THE MILLINER

By Elizabeth Mater.

"Why can't I get enough girls for my shop when millinery is distinctly a woman's business?" the milliner asks.

"Is it that girls don't realize that millinery is one of the fine arts and that a knowledge of it is invaluable in the home as well as the shop?"

THE DRAFTSMAN

By R. S. Alexander

"What's a draftsman, Dad?"

"Thinking of being one?"

"Well, a good many engineers go through the drafting room and many big executives in the manufacturing plants come up to that route."

"A big engineer I once knew said,

"Draftsmanship is the universal language by which the designer conveys instructions to the workman."

"It is the method by which the men who make the plans for a piece of work lay out the details of the work and impart them to the men on the job in instructions down to the smallest detail as to just how it is to be carried out."

"Every big plant has a corps of draftsmen. Many of these men draw the plans for the engineers prepared by other persons.

"You want to get into the designing end. There you will work out new sets of plans for the making of machines or the building of various sorts of structures."

"For this position, you may have your chance at an executive job in the office or in the field. You may work up to a position as Chief Designer, Chief of the Office, or perhaps Chief Engineer."

"Be sure before you plan to be a draftsman that you have the natural qualifications for it. You must be careful and neat. You must have a natural knack for drawing accurately and clearly. Then you should have an interest in some sort of engineering."

"It will mean a long, hard grind

Many girls with artistic ability that are scrapping to beat a man at his own job could find the joy of creative work in a military shop.

"The present demand for workers in this trade has made it much easier for a girl to start. Every store of any size pays its beginners a salary now; the big department stores pay a girl $10 a week for learning the trade. The rest is "up to her."

"If she has a natural gift for design plus training in a store or school, her opportunities are numberless and range from the regular "trimmers" in stores to the head designer in department stores."

"Even if she wants to be a saleswoman or buyer in millinery the shop-room experience is invaluable. The girl who has made hats has a better idea of what lines are becoming to her customers."

"Many girls along usually place their students in shops. But there is an advantage in handling a wide range of hats, such as a wholesale house or a department store offers which cannot be found in any school.

"The girl who can combine good intuition and business ability with skill in design should open a shop of her own, either in a town where she has friends or in the good buying districts of a city. You would be astonished to hear of the humble beginnings of many exclusive Fifth Avenue shops."

"The successful milliner is naturally an artist in design as well as a good business woman. In addition, she is neat, well dressed, courteous, and frank with her customers, and wide awake to all new ideas in trade magazines and other shopping centers.

"Learn how to "make an outline,"

CHEESE BOYS WIN FROM MT. HOORB

Green County Team Has Lived Up to Dope So Far in Fast Meet.

(By Special Correspondent)

Platteville, March 5.—Monroe high school plays Prairie du Chien today for the championship of the Platteville district. The Green county schoolboys have been living up to their reputation of being a crack five hurling everything before them with overwhelming scores. If they continue in this style they have an excellent chance of capturing the title.

Their center chaps took Mount Horeb into camp yesterday afternoon by the time of 10 to 9. While they made 7 baskets they held the Mount boys to 2. Wood, running guard, was the individual star with four baskets.

In yesterday's games Prairie du Chien got cold feet and refused to meet Mount Horeb with whom they were scheduled. Fenimore and Mount Horeb are scheduled to play today for third place, but it is rumored that Fenimore will not take the

Just Read What Two Janesville's Prominent Business Men Think of the Gulbransen

The Music Shop,
Janesville, Wisc.

March 4, '20.

Perhaps nothing is more restful or stimulating to the tired worker than music. The man worn with the cares of his business and the woman after a hard day's work at home can relax when the sweet sounds of harmony are set before them. All cannot perform on musical instruments but all can have the latest popular songs or the heaviest classical selections played for them on a piano player.

I recently purchased one of your Gulbransen Players and have found it to be entirely satisfactory. Its operation is simple, the mechanism for bringing out the expression of the most difficult rendition is easily controlled and the tone effects are excellent.

I take keen enjoyment in my Gulbransen after a hard day's work.

Yours sincerely,
Signed
HARRY V. ROSS.

Mr. Gulbransen Owner

Just see what Mr. Gulbransen tells his Distributors.

Think it over.

"When a man goes to buy a Gulbransen Player, he should say to himself—

Five Hundred and Fifty Dollars for the Suburban Model, One Hundred Dollars for rolls; total, Six Hundred Fifty.

If he doesn't know enough to say it, you as a salesman should say it for him.

What is the idea of selling a man a $550 instrument and a measly $10 worth of rolls?

He can't enjoy the Player without rolls can he?

And he buys the Player expecting to enjoy it doesn't he?

Listen:

The only way to get any real good out of a Player-Piano is to have LOTS of rolls. Not several dozen. Not a cabinet full. LOTS of them! OODLES of them! So many that no matter if you sit at your Player every evening, SOME of your rolls will SEEM NEW, because you haven't played them in a long while.

By the way, did it ever occur to you that every purchaser of a GULBRANSEN Player CAN AFFORD to buy a hundred dollars' worth of rolls?

Easily! He saves that much—comparing the Gulbransen, value for value, with instruments of unknown, locally set prices.

Remember

We are interested in having you enjoy your Gulbransen. We carry a most complete stock of rolls for your selection at all times. We carry everything in the three leading lines of rolls. RYTHMODIC, Q. R. S. and UNIVERSAL. Let us play some of them for you.

EASY TO PLAY

Janesville, Wisconsin, March 4, '20.

The Music Shop,
City.

Gentlemen:

After a trying day we find that our Gulbransen player soothes the nerves and irons out the wrinkles developed by the cares and worries of business.

We wish to state that we selected the Gulbransen after a careful inspection of a large number of players and the soft tone, ease of operation and beautiful finish were the deciding factors.

Although in use for over a year, we have not as yet called your trouble man and from all appearances our player is in as good a condition from a mechanical standpoint as the day we purchased it, while the finish is excellent.

We would be more than pleased to have you use us for reference to any prospect you may have.

Yours truly,
Signed
WM. O'CONNELL.

Nationally Priced

Three Models all playable either by hand or player roll. Sold at the same price by everyone, everywhere in the United States, freight, delivery and war tax paid. Price branded on the back of each instrument at the factory insures your buying a Gulbransen at the right price.

The Gulbransen is NATIONALLY ADVERTISED in the SATURDAY EVENING POST and all of the leading Farm Papers. Did you ever notice that you never see a Gulbransen Ad issued by Gulbransen themselves that the prices are not quoted in the Ad? Gulbransen established the proper retail price of his player to insure the sale of a quantity production and to force all Gulbransen Salesmen to sell his player at an honest price and depend on quantity sales to earn their profits instead of making a big profit on few sales.

Gulbransen Quality

Gulbransen Player-pianos are musical instruments of the highest quality. They are made of the best materials obtainable, in fact you will find the same materials used in the construction of Gulbransen Player pianos that you find in any of the highest priced instruments on the market. We would take great pleasure in showing you some of the finer points of construction embraced in the Gulbransen.

We Have a Fine Stock on Hand for Immediate Delivery

We invite you to try the pedal action yourself. It plays so easy. We challenge you to spend 10 minutes playing the GULBRANSEN and as long as you like with any other make.

Making "Accompaniment" Possible

One of the natural results of the ownership of a player-piano is the desire to accompany someone who sings.

For the same reason that sheet music is sold in different keys to play an accompaniment on a player piano, the instrument must transpose to suit the voice of the singer.

The Gulbransen Transposing device, by the simple turn of an adjusting device, transposes the music into any key desired.

The Gulbransen Is Versatile

We can furnish rolls made especially for accompaniment rolls. Through the transposing device these rolls are practical. You can accompany anyone with a Gulbransen even if they play any kind of a band or orchestral instrument for the Gulbransen can be changed to play in any key.

We can furnish a full set of lessons on player rolls so the children may learn to play, with the Gulbransen for the teacher.

And the Gulbransen Is So Easy to Play

Ask us for the book entitled,

Good Times with Your Gulbransen.

They are free to you whether you are a Gulbransen owner or not.
